

Anterior Cruciate Ligament (ACL) Repair and Reconstruction

Description	ACL repair surgery generally is used in the case of avulsion fracture (a separation of the ligament and a piece of the bone from the rest of the bone). In this case, the bone fragment connected to the ACL is reattached to the bone. ACL reconstruction surgery uses a graft to replace the ligament. The most common grafts are autografts, such as section of the patient’s kneecap.
